Fund performance

The Invesco Global Founders & Owners Fund delivered a positive return for the month of August but lagged the MSCI AC World Index. Despite a somewhat volatile month, which included a mid-month chip stock sell-off and rising oil prices, global equities finished the month strongly, supported by cooling US inflation and resilient AI-related earnings.

Cruise operator Viking was the biggest detractor amid concerns over low river water levels in Europe, which overshadowed broadly positive quarterly earnings and healthy bookings for 2027. Battery maker CATL was also impacted by its flagship Jianxiawo lithium mine remaining closed throughout August pending environmental approvals, while Performance Food detracted following weaker fourth quarter results and full-year guidance that fell short of expectations. Meanwhile, medical supplies distributor Medline also lost ground as markets looked beyond strong second quarter earnings, which were aided by tariff refunds, and instead focused on the company's reduced full-year guidance amid factors including input cost inflation and broader macroeconomic pressures.

By contrast, Dynatrace, a cloud software monitoring company, reported better-than-expected results and raised its full-year profit guidance. The company also benefited from a broader software sector re-rating as concerns about AI disruption showed signs of subsiding. Microsoft was another positive contributor, benefiting from both follow-through from the positive market reaction to its July earnings release and improved sentiment towards the broader software sector following upbeat results from peers and competitors. LSEG also contributed positively, while being underweight Alphabet provided an additional benefit to relative performance.

Outlook

Markets are once again being shaped by elevated uncertainty. Geopolitical tensions, volatile energy prices and concerns around inflation persistence have reinforced how quickly sentiment can turn and how limited the value of macro forecasting can be. At the same time, while market leadership has broadened somewhat, investor attention remains focused on a relatively narrow group of companies, creating opportunities elsewhere for patient, long-term investors. In response, our focus remains deliberately bottom up: identifying businesses that are built to endure across different environments. Central to this is owner alignment. Founder and family-led companies tend to prioritise resilience, sustainable value creation and disciplined capital allocation, rather than short-term optimisation when conditions become more challenging.

We continue to see attractive opportunities where the market is misreading durability. In sectors such as healthcare, weak sentiment can overlook businesses with strong structural advantages. Businesses run by committed owners are often well placed to invest through periods of uncertainty, strengthening their competitive positions while others retrench.

The common thread across the portfolio is a long-term perspective. These are companies led by founders, families or strongly aligned owners who make decisions measured in decades, not quarters. They do not depend on a precise macro outcome or a near-term catalyst. Rather, they rely on time, execution and the steady accumulation of competitive strength. In an environment dominated by fear and short-termism, we believe this approach provides a solid framework for long-term capital growth.
