Target Fund Manager's Commentary (as at 31 March 2025)

Global equities posted negative returns in March, with global equities high dividend index traded sideways throughout the month, finishing slightly below the water. Headlines dominated by tariffs continued to bring uncertainty over trade and economic policy, and the US stock markets were the main victim in this volatile scenario. S&P 500 fell sharply in the month, with tech sector leading the decline. In Europe, markets ended up on the negative terrain, however outperforming global equities. Plans for fiscal stimulus in Germany with an associated uplift sentiment to Euro area growth supported the gains for the quarter and the outperformance in the month. In the UK, after spooking markets in last October's UK Budget by raising taxes but unexpectedly increasing public spending, Rachel Reeves' Spring Statement was more restrained. With a downgrade in its 2025 growth forecast, the Chancellor unveiled back-loaded spending cuts to meet her fiscal rules.

In March, as of month end the fund underperformed its market cap weighted index. On a portfolio level, our exposures to Value, Quality, Industry Momentum, Low Risk and Low Carbon contributed to performance, while our exposure to Size weighed on performance.

On an industry basis, our overweight allocation to Insurance coupled with our underweight exposures to Media & Entertainment and Consumer Services contributed to performance. Conversely, our underweight exposures to Energy and Food, Beverage & Tobacco coupled with our overweight allocation to Technology Hardware & Equipment weighed on performance.

On a country basis, our underweight exposures to Denmark, Germany and Sweden contributed to performance. Conversely, our underweight exposures to Japan and Singapore coupled with our overweight allocation to United Kingdom weighed on performance.

On a stock level basis, our underweight exposures to Meta Platforms A, Broadcom and Novo Nordisk B contributed to performance. Conversely, our overweight allocations to Flutter Entm, Crh Plc and UBS Group weighed on performance.
