The returns presented are net of all relevant fees, charges, and costs associated with the wholesale investment. These may include, but are not limited to, management fees, trustee fees, and other applicable charges. Over time, such fees and charges can materially reduce the overall returns on your investment.

It is important to note that the sales charge is deducted upfront and directly reduces the amount of the initial investment that is allocated to the fund, which in turn can have the effect of lowering returns to investors in the long run. These costs may be deducted from your investment amount, from the returns generated, or directly from the Fund's assets, and are reflected in the unit price (NAV per unit). This includes expenses related to the marketing and distribution of the Fund. Additionally, all fees and charges payable to the Manager and the Trustee are subject to applicable taxes and/or duties, which may vary from time to time as imposed by the government.

Given the impact these costs can have on your investment returns, investors are strongly advised to read and understand the contents of the Fund's information memorandum and consider the cumulative impact of these costs before making any investment decision.

Past performance is not necessarily indicative of future performance and that unit prices and investment returns may go down, as well up.

Target Fund Manager's Commentary (as at 30 June 2026)

Market Review

Global equities ended the month down, masking an intense intra-month swing driven by three interlocking themes: improving Middle East headlines, a more hawkish shift in US monetary policy and sharp swerves in the AI trade. Signs of a more durable US-Iran ceasefire and a path toward reopening the Strait of Hormuz reduced the most acute energy-supply tail risk, but markets remained conscious that true normalization could take months due to insurance, logistics, repairs, and inventory rebuilding. Equity leadership broadened beyond mega-cap tech as higher yields and more guarded central bank messaging kept volatility elevated. In the US, the S&P 500 and Nasdaq finished the month lower despite record highs early in June, while the equal-weight S&P 500 outperformed on renewed signs of market broadening. Large caps underperformed, while mid-caps and small caps posted strong gains. Semiconductors and memory stocks ended higher but were highly volatile, while sector performance rotated toward a defensive side as technology and other growth-sensitive areas lagged. European equities were supported by easing energy pressures as oil prices fell following progress toward reopening the Strait of Hormuz. The ECB raised the deposit rate by 25 bps to 2.25%. UK equities rose, but underperformed European markets, with domestic sentiment shaped by political uncertainty.

Fund Commentary

In June, as of month end the Target Fund underperformed its market cap weighted index. On a portfolio level, our exposures to Low Risk, Industry Momentum, Size and Value contributed to performance, while our exposures to Quality and Low Carbon weighed on performance.

Industries

On an industry basis, our underweight exposure to Software & Services coupled with our overweight allocations to Insurance and Semiconductors & Semiconductor Equipment contributed to performance. Conversely, our underweight exposures to Banks and Pharmaceuticals, Biotechnology & Life Sciences coupled with our overweight allocation to Technology Hardware & Equipment weighed on performance.

Countries

On a country basis, our underweight exposures to Israel and Finland coupled with our overweight allocation to Spain contributed to performance. Conversely, our underweight exposure to Australia coupled with our overweight allocations to Hong Kong and Norway weighed on performance.

Stock Level

On a stock level basis, our overweight allocations to Applied Mats, Lam Research and Asml Holding contributed to performance. Conversely, our overweight allocation to Qualcomm coupled with our underweight exposures to Kila and Intel weighed on performance.
